Building Materials & Services Trends

1. Covering all the surfaces

It's out with the old and in with versatile new materials like quartz surfacing, engineered with quartz and resin for greater durability on countertops and even special applications like wall treatments. Motivo patterned quartz from CaesarStone Quartz Surfaces. www.caesarstoneus.com

2. Building to last

Homeowners today expect long-term results, choosing materials that will last longer with less maintenance. Outside, synthetic stone looks authentic and is designed to withstand the elements. Synthetic stone balustrade from Outwater Plastics Industries & Architectural Products. www.outwater.com

3. Making a statement

Building materials are now available in limitless textures, colors and materials. Patterned tile is just one unique example, an ornate update on a classic look. Jardin Collection tile from Artistic Tile. www.artistictile.com

4. Going green

Recycled and reclaimed products are filling the market. Reclaimed hardwood flooring is just one of many materials gaining popularity for its good looks and earth-friendliness. Reclaimed hardwood flooring from Olde Wood Limited. www.oldewoodltd.com
